Funeral of Mrs. Lucas.

A large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends attended the funeral services of Mrs. Mamie Roche Lucas, Friday afternoon, in the Paris cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. E. H. Rutherford.

The pall-bearers were as follows: Dr. Frank Roche, O. P. Carter, Jr., Ben Bishop, James Hukill, Phil Deignan and James M. O'Brien.

Those from a distance who attended the services were: Mrs. J. Katherine Callahan, Mrs. Annie McDonald and daughter, Miss Jennie McDonald, and Mr. and Mrs. John Parker, of Frankfort; Messrs. Collins, of Huntsville, Ala., cousins of the deceased, and Mrs. Margaret Flynn, Mrs. John Sullivan, Misses Lillie Benckart, and Mary McNamara, and Messrs. Thomas McNamara and James Doyle, of Lexington; Mrs. Katie Washington, of Rockport, Ill., sister of Mr. Lucas, and the latter's mother, Mrs. Ann Lucas, of Cynthiana.

Reward Offered For Lost Umbrella.

The umbrella that was picked up from the corner of the postoffice lobby on last Wednesday evening while the gentleman who put it there was talking to Postmaster Earlywine in his private office, was a piece of property that was highly prized by its owner, it being a Christmas present from his mother. It was a silk umbrella, with a hook gun metal handle with a silver vine on handle. If the person who has this umbrella is not a common thief, he will return it to this office and receive a liberal reward for same. There is not another umbrella like it in Paris, and it can easily be detected by the owner.

Painful Accident.

Mr. Bruce Miller, editor and proprietor of the Kentuckian-Citizen, met with a very painful accident late Sunday afternoon. Mr. Miller had occasion to visit his office and enter his large safe and after returning some papers to the safe after examining them slammed the heavy door, which caught the end of his left thumb, cutting it off as smooth as if it had been done with a surgeon's knife. He picked up the disjointed piece and proceeded to the office of Dr. Silas Evans, where the end was put back and the wound dressed. While he is suffering considerably from the wound there is some hopes of the dismembered piece adhering to its proper place.

Powers Issues Statement.

Caleb Powers Saturday issued a statement in which he criticizes Judge Robbins' decision vacating the bench. He says Judge Robbins violated the law as laid down by himself in permitting the Commonwealth to controvert his affidavit. Several affidavits of persons who say they saw Judge Robbins enter the jury room, are also made public by Powers.

Auto Fatalities.

At Bordeaux, France, a racing automobile, competing in the Criterion cup, collided in a dust cloud with a touring car, resulting in the death of five men and the fatal injury of two others. At Middletown, N. Y., a machine turned turtle in a ditch, killing two persons, fatally injured another and hurt three children. A trolley car at Atlantic City collided with an automobile and Mrs. Charles H. Law was killed. Her husband and the chauffeur were painfully injured.

Family Reunion.

The Withers family held their annual summer reunion July 26, at Fairacre, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ashbrook, near Paris. Mrs. Wm. Temple Withers, who is here from Ocoee, Florida, spending the summer with her daughters and her brother-in-law, Mr. James Withers, of Cynthiana, the eldest member of the family, were the honored guests. The occasion was a happy gathering for all.

The guests assembled in the woods back of the house in the beautiful sugar maple grove where luncheon was served.

Among those present for the reunion were: Mrs. James T. Withers, Mr. and Mrs. James P. Headley, Mr. A. M. Harrison, Miss Katherine Headley, Mr. James Headley, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Withers, Misses Martha, Catherine, Bella and Lena Withers, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ashbrook, Messrs. Alan, Temple and Thomas Ashbrook, Mrs. Charles W. Moore, Mr. Temple Moore, Misses Virginia and Ida Harrison, Moore, Master Whitney Moore, Mr. and Mrs. James Withers, of Cynthiana; Mrs. Jennie Withers Smith, Miss Jane Brookner, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davis, Miss Katherine Davis, Messrs. Withers, John, and Joseph Davis, of Paris; Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Withers, of Cynthiana; Mr. and Mrs. Baily Berry, and sons, Dawson and Jack Berry.

A tent was provided in case of rain but the weather was fine and all present felt that it was a perfect and delightful occasion.

To the regret of the company, Mr. and Mrs. Wyndham Joyce and Miss Rebel Withers were presented from attending by illness.

Sunday School Convention.

There were near four hundred people in attendance at the Annual Bourbon County Sunday School Convention or the Christian church at North Middletown last Thursday.

Every Sunday school in the county was represented with delegations numbering from five to twenty-five, while a large number of visitors were present from adjoining counties. Each Sunday school sent a written report, which showed a contribution to the fund for the endowment of a chair of Sunday School Pedagogy at Kentucky University; a contribution to the general organization for State work, entitling each to a position on the roll of honor.

State Evangelist R. M. Hopkins, of Louisville, was present and gave much encouragement to the representatives of the various schools. The convention was held in the Christian church, which was totally inadequate to accommodate the crowd, and was presided over by Elder W. S. Willis, of Clintonville.

John Willie Jones was secretary, and made an address that was pronounced one of the best ever heard in Sunday School work.

E. R. Buffington, the new principal of the North Middletown Classical and Business College, made an address on the subject, "Teacher's Training Course." The venerable John S. Sweeney, of Paris, who gave more than fifty years of his life to the ministry, delivered an interesting talk on the Sunday School work of a generation ago. At the noon hour the convention adjourned to the beautiful college grove where the women of the congregation of the North Middletown Christian church had prepared dinner.

At the afternoon session a number of addresses were delivered by Elder C. W. Dick, Dr. Burrows, J. Moler McEvoy, W. S. Willis, Elder Waters, W. O. Hinton and others.

ard" are now on sale at Oberdorfer's.

Col. Clay Improving.

Col. E. F. Clay, the widely known breeder of thoroughbred horses, who has been critically ill for nearly two weeks with appendicitis at Runnymede, his country home near Paris, is reported much improved and, while he is yet by no means out of danger, the doctors now believe that the chances are in favor of his recovery. Col. Clay was given some nourishment Saturday, it being the first time he has eaten since he was taken ill, two weeks ago.

He was again given food Sunday and was permitted to sit up in bed for a short time. If no relapse occurs it is hoped that the patient will soon be on the way to convalescence.

Fined For Jumping Board Bill.

John Hatter, an employee of the L. & N. railroad, was arrested Saturday by Deputy Sheriff W. F. Talbott on the charge of jumping a board bill.

Hatter recently was married to Miss Jessie Bean and went to board at the McKenney boarding house, on North Main street, near Second. Several months later it is alleged he deserted his wife as well as his boarding house without having previously settled his bill of $28. Saturday, Mr. McKenney, hearing of Hatter's presence in the city, swore out a warrant for his arrest and placing the document in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Talbott, accompanied the officer to the depot, where Hatter was pointed out and placed under arrest.

He was fined $25 and cost in Judge Dundon's Court yesterday morning, and if fine is not paid or replevied will have to work it out in the county work house.

The party will leave on the 7 o'clock p.m. car for the home at Lexington. While in the city the party will be in charge of a committee from Bourbon Lodge, headed by E. B. January.

..... PAYABLE IN ADVANCE.....Governor Johnson Of Minnesota.

So many new candidates are being mentioned for the nomination by the Democracy for President, who are comparatively unknown by the great majority of the voters, that it would seem appropriate to give brief biographies of the most prominent ones. As William Jennings Bryan has been twice the candidate of the Democratic party and has thus been more in the public eye than almost any other American it would be superfluous to give his biography, for his public life is an open book to his countrymen.

Among those most frequently mentioned besides Mr. Bryan are Gov. John A. Johnson, of Minnesota; Gov. Hoke Smith, of Georgia; Senator John W. Daniel, of Virginia; Senator Charles A. Culberson, of Texas; Gov. Folk, of Missouri; President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton University; John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi; Gov. Beckham, of Kentucky; former Senator Carmack, of Tennessee, and Judson Harmon, of Ohio.

Gov. Johnson will be first considered. He was born at St. Peter, Minnesota, July 28, 1861, of Swedish parents. His father was a blacksmith, who died leaving his family unprovided for. In 1873, therefore, John was obliged to quit school and work for the support of the family. He was employed in a printing office at $10 a month, and gave all his earnings to his mother. Afterwards, he became a clerk in a drug store, and, in 1877, he was getting $75 a month, though but sixteen years old.

He joined the National Guard, in which he served seven years reaching the rank of captain. Returning to the printing business, he obtained a member of the firm of Essler and Johnson, publishers of the St. Peter Herald, of which he was until recently the editor. He has always been a Democrat, and was elected, as such, to the State Senate in which he served one term before he was nominated for Governor by his party, in 1901. As a candidate for Governor in that year he received a majority of 6,852; in total vote of 297,592, although Roosevelt carried the State by a majority of 161,000. As the first Democratic governor of Minnesota since the war he gave the State a wise, decent, economical administration. He opposed extravagance and every kind of fraud; and successfully planned and advocated legislation taxing mortgages, and the Steel Trust, iron ore monopoly, sleeping car companies, etc. He also procured the establishment of a permanent tax commission to adjust the burden of state taxes upon the different counties. He obtained a reduction of freight rates in Minnesota; also a two cent passenger fare, and the abolition of the corrupt free pass system; and secured the passage of statutes regulating the management of life insurance, which prove entirely efficient.

In consequence of these reforms, he was renominated for Governor by the Democrats in 1906, and carried the State by a majority of 76,633 votes, showing greatly increased popularity.

Gov. Johnson's position on the important issues of the day can best be told in his own words. For instance, he has recently said: "I believe the State must be absolute in their authority to regulate and control railway rates on business wholly within the State. I believe that the Government should do no business which can be done as well, or better, by private individuals. The time has not arrived when there should be even a suggestion of government ownership of railroads."

Kentucky Democracy Demands A Fair Trial.

The case of the Commonwealth vs. Caleb Powers was called in the Scott Circuit Court Monday morning of last week and entered into for the fourth time. Three times he has been tried for complicity in the assassination of Governor William Goebel, three times convicted and the judgment reversed each time by the higher courts. This is his fourth trial, he objected to Judge Robbins and the honorable Judge has vacated the bench.

The guilt or innocence of Caleb Powers does not affect the people of this Commonwealth so much as does the manner of his trial. It is a matter of vital importance to the people of

CONSUMPTION'S WARNING

Inside facts soon become evident in outside symptoms.—DR. G. G. GREEN.

The aid of scientific inventions is not needed to determine whether your lungs are affected. The first symptoms can be readily noted by anyone of average intelligence.

There is no disease known that gives so many plain warnings of its approach as consumption, and no serious disease that can be so quickly reached and checked, if the medicine used is Dr. Boschee's German Syrup, which is made to cure consumption.

It is in the early stages that German Syrup should be taken, when warnings are given in the cough that won't quit, the congestion of the bronchial tubes and the gradual weakening of the lungs, accompanied by frequent expectoration.

But no matter how deep-seated your cough, even if dread consumption has already attacked your lungs, German Syrup will surely effect a cure—as it has done before in thousands of apparently hopeless cases of lung trouble.

A COUNTRY VISITOR.

The New York Man Felt Above Him, but Changed His Opinion.

One of the most successful wholesale dry goods merchants New York city ever saw had the peculiar habit of regarding as his inferior any man who was engaged in a business less genteel, as he held, than his own. In his employ was a young Vermonter, who felt highly elated when one day a man from his native town who was visiting the city called on him. The man was somewhat crude in his manners, but he had piled up a fortune in the tinware business and in buying up at a discount in times of panic commercial paper which he believed was good. The youth introduced the Vermonter to his employer.

"What business are you in?" asked the dry goods prince as the two shook hands.

"The tin-wa-a-r business," drawled the Vermonter.

Without a word the dry goods merchant turned on his heel and bolted into his private office. He didn't recognize tinware merchants as desirable acquaintances.

"Hold on a minute, Mr. ——" shouted the Vermonter after the retreating figure. "Are these here things goin' to be paid when they fall due?"

From his wallet the Vermonter drew several slips of paper, which he held up to the dry goods merchant's face. The merchant glanced at them and effusively bade the Vermonter welcome to his private office. The papers were notes to the extent of $50,000 uttered by the dry goods merchant and which, unknown to him, the Vermonter had bought up at a big discount.—Brooklyn Eagle.

OLD TIME CELEBRATIONS.

Happiness the Order of the Day, Tranquillity of the Night.

The files of old newspapers are a priceless record of the history and manners of their times. In the papers of 1796 the accounts of public rejoicings show that these were few in number and that the method of keeping them differed widely from our ideas of festivities. Washington's birthday was perhaps the greatest holiday.

"Industrious citizens," we are told, "appropriated the hour of noon for the congratulations of the day. Each family enriched the domestic meal with bountiful provisions, and gay spirits and temperate and undissimbed joy pervaded all classes."

There were speeches and processions and illuminations for the less industrious who were willing to give something more than the hour of noon to the celebration, but the most memorable observance of the day was that of the Harvard students.

"Saying to each other that it would be disgraceful to pretend to honor Washington with riot and disorder, they retired to their chambers before 9 o'clock, and by the time the bells ceased ringing there was not a light to be seen in any of the buildings."

This is equaled by the summing up of the celebrations of Fourth of July for the same year, a day observed with great rejoicings. No accidents are reported, and the editor concludes, "In short, in every place we heard from happiness was the order of the day, tranquillity of the night."—Youth's Companion.

The Luscious Grape.

The grape, whose purple flood man for century after century has converted into wine, is a Persian by birth. Its cradle was on the sunny hills to the south of the Caspian sea, and there the ancients ate it and enjoyed its acid taste. The men of Caubul ground it to a dry powder and ate it with relish, half as a medicine, half because they liked it. And then those days went by, and we hear of the renowned grapes of Palestine, which grew in immense clusters and weighed fifteen pounds to the bunch. Noah planted the vine immediately after the deluge. The book of Genesis mentions bread and wine, and the Israelites complained that Moses and Aaron had brought them out of Egypt into a dry and barren land where there were neither figs nor vines.

A Difficult Feat.

Have you ever tried to stand upright on a log perhaps a foot across the butt out in an open lake, keeping your balance to every roll and dip of the log? Well, if you had you would realize better the marvelous balance of the man who not only has to do this, but also maneuver other logs down the current with a long pole, chain booms together with numbed fingers, and, in fact, do the whole of his day's work while balancing on a twirling, twisting, half submerged tree trunk.—Wide World Magazine.

Immune.

"You'd better get out. Here comes that idiot Boreham, and he's got a story he thinks is new that he'll insist on handing you."

"No, he won't. I'm immune."

"How's that?"

"I told him the story."—Cleveland Leader.

Worse Than He Felt.

Cutting—I suppose it did make you feel mean. Dubbs—Will, I should say? Why, I felt like a plugged nickel! Cutting—Ah! But what a blessing it is that we never feel quite as bad as we look.—Philadelphia Press.

Meeting Trouble.

More people would snap their fingers in the face of trouble if trouble didn't have such a sudden way of swooping down on us.—Chicago Record-Herald.

When a man seeks your advice he generally wants your praise.—Chesterfield.

A QUAIANT DOCUMENT.

Minutes of the First Representative Assembly in America.

The minutes of the first representative assembly in America as written by its clerk, John Twine, constitute a quaint and interesting document. They are headed:

"A reporte of the manner of proceeding in the general assembly convened at James City, in Virginia, July 30, 1619, consisting of the governor, the counsell of estate and two burgesses elected out of each incorporation and plantation, and being dissolved the 4th of August next ensuing."

The assembly met in the "quire of the church." Then, "forasmuch as men's affaires doe little prosper where God's service is neglected, all the burgesses took their places in the quire till a prayer was said by Mr. Bucke, the minister, that it would please God to guide and sanctifie all our proceedings to his owne glory and the good of this plantation."

After the prayer the burgesses were summoned one by one to take the oath to the king, "none staggering at it."

The assembly at once set to work to adopt English laws to Virginian conditions. It added a series of trade regulations to restrict the production of tobacco, to keep up prices and to encourage the output of flax, silk and wine. Thus before the Pilgrims were thinking of leaving Holland representative government was firmly established in the new world.—Exchange.

FOOLING A CAMEL.

How the Arabs Let the Animal Exhaust Its Bad Temper.

You all have heard stories about the camel—how patient and useful he is on long, hot journeys, so that he is often called the "ship of the desert."

But he has one very bad fault. He likes to "pay back," and if his driver has injured him in any way he will not rest till he has returned the injury.

The Arabs, who wander about the deserts and so use the camel a great deal, know about this fault of his and have a queer way of keeping themselves from getting hurt.

When a driver has made his camel angry, he first runs away out of sight. Then, choosing a place where the camel will soon pass, he throws down some of his clothes and fixes them so that the heap will look like a sleeping man.

Pretty soon along comes the camel and sees the heap. Thinking to himself, "Now I've got you," he pounces on the clothes, shakes them around and tramples all over them. After he is tired of this and has turned away the driver can reappear and ride him away without harm.

Poor silly camel! He has been in what we call "a blind rage," so angry that he can't tell the difference between a man and a heap of clothes.—Mayflower.

Carried It In His Head.

When four years old Mozart played minuets and learned music with facility, and at the age of six he composed a concerto for the harpsichord, which, though written strictly in accordance with the principles and technique of his art, was yet so overloaded with difficulties that it could not be played.

It is related that Mozart once happened to put off some music that he had been engaged to furnish for a court concert so long that he had not time to write out the part which he himself was to perform.

The Emperor Joseph, who was of a curious turn, chanced to be in the composer's studio when he asked: "Where is your part? I do not see it among these sheets of music."

"Here," responded Mozart, touching his forehead.—St. Louis Republic.

"Hanged" and "Hung."

Perhaps the Bible has had an influence in preventing many people from distinguishing between the uses of "hanged" and "hung," says a London writer.

They "hanged" Haman, but the Jews in captivity also "hanged" their harps upon the willows; and in the New Testament we read "It were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck." If "hanged" was correct in either sense in the days of the authorized version, those who are not strong upon grammar may be subconsciously induced to believe that "hung" is correct in both senses now.

But it is curious that the exclamation "I'll be hanged!" never appears as "I'll be hung."

Clever Woman.

"There is no use trying to deny it," said one man to another. "Blimey is badly married. I hate to say it, but it's so."

"How do you know?"

"By a talk I have just had with him."

"Does he complain?"

"No. That's the pathetic part of it. He was telling me how good natured and clever his wife is because this morning she showed him how to fasten his braces to his trousers with a hairpin."—London Tit-Bits.

He who has three enemies must agree with two.—German Proverb.

Stammer to Yourself.

To the many correspondents who have written inquiries and suggestions as to a cure for stammering we may state that this is not a medical bureau. This writer gave his own method of curing his own particular nervous disorder, which is probably shared by many of his fellow men. Let it be repeated in answer to many who seem to have seen the problem and missed the solution. Consume your own smoke. If you must stammer, try to stammer to yourself. When you have tut-tutted and gur-gurred sufficiently to yourself, you will be ready with the word. It is quite astonishing how soon the inaudible stammer becomes unnecessary and the word is whipped out!

But there are some men who hug a stammer—stammering always in the right place—lifting curiously to tiptoe in the listener. Charles Lamb stammered, but always in the right place, as when he went to buy cheese (the story may be quite untrue). The shopman offered to send it home. Lamb inspected it. Then he asked for a bit of string. "I think," he said, "I could l-l-l-ead it home."—London Spectator.

Not a Clothes Peg.

Peggie Newton had been a faithful house drudge for years, and had not grumbled much when her wages were occasionally passed over. But as time went on, and her salary fell more and more into arrear, she ventured to ask for something "on account."

"Why, haven't I paid you your wages lately, Peg? How careless of me," her mistress said. "I'm sorry I have no money in the house just now, but here's a smart cloak that I've censed to wear, and which is only a wee bit out of fashion. You'll take it in lieu of wages, won't you?"

"No, ma'am, I'm sure I shan't," said Peg, wrathfully eying the faded old cloak. "A peg I may be by name, but I won't be the sort of peg that people hang castoff clothes on—not if I know it."—London Answers.

Old Whist Terms.

"On Sunday last a terrible fire broke out at Lady Brag's, occasioned by the following accident: Mrs. Overall, the housekeeper, having lost three rubbers at whist running without holding a swabber (notwithstanding she had changed chairs, furzed the cards and ordered Jemmy, the footboy, to sit cross legged for good luck), grew out of all patience and, taking up the devil's books, as she called them, flung them into the fire, and the flames spread to the steward's room."

Swabbers are the ace of hearts, the knave of clubs and the ace and the deuce of trumps at whist. To furz or fuzz is to shuffle the cards very carefully or to change the pack.—London Notes and Queries.

Why Rain Clouds Are Black.

The color of a cloud depends on the manner in which the sunlight falls upon it and the position of the observer. It will be noticed that high clouds are always white or light in color, and this is because the light by which they are seen is reflected from the under surface by the numberless drops of moisture which go to form the cloud. Heavy rain clouds, on the other hand, are found much nearer the earth, and so the light falls on them more directly from above, giving a silver lining to the cloud, though the under surface appears black owing to the complete reflection and absorption of the light by the upper layers. Seen from above by an observer in a balloon, the blackest rain clouds appear of the most dazzlingly brilliant white.

Tennis and Lawn Tennis.

There are thousands who imagine that tennis and lawn tennis are identical. In America tennis, the mother game, is always known as court tennis, whereas lawn tennis is generally known as "tennis." The games are in many respects very different. The court, which in in lawn tennis is open, in tennis is closed at the back and sides by the walls, and almost invariably above by a roof.

There is a considerable amount of play off the back and side walls. The balls are harder than lawn tennis balls, being, in fact, of the consistency of cricket balls. Hence the rackets are heavier and the gut is thicker.—Fry's Magazine.

Songs and Sentiment.

It is a singular fact that in proportion to the wealth of melody of a nation so does its emotional side develop. Remarkable instances of this are to be found in the United Kingdom. In Scotland, Ireland and Wales, countries rich in national songs, the emotional nature is strong. In England, where the melodies, if sweet, are at any rate not so touching and appealing, sentiment is slight.—Liverpool Courier.

The History of Man.

The ecclesiastical authorities divide the history of man into six ages: First, from Adam to Noah; second, from Noah to Abraham; third, from Abraham to David; fourth, from David to the Babylonian captivity; fifth, from the captivity of Judah to the birth of Christ; sixth, from the birth of Christ to the end of the world.

Two Special Premiums Worth Going After.

On page 51 of the catalog of the Bourbon County Agricultural Society will be found a special premium offered by The Kaufman Buggy Co., through its representatives in Paris, Yerkes & Kenney, of $20.00 for the best harness horse, gelding or mare, driven to a Kauffman vehicle purchased of Yerkes & Kenney, and $10.00 for second premium.

On page 57 of the catalog, you will also find a special premium of $20.00 offered by H. B. Babcock Co., through their agency, Yerkes & Kenney, for the best harness horse, gelding or mare, driven to a Babcock vehicle, bought of Yerkes & Kenney, and $10.00 for second premium.

The above specials are liberal and shows the interest taken in the Bourbon Fair by this enterprising young firm of Yerkes & Kenney, dealers in fine vehicles, farm implements, feed, grain, seeds, coal and salt.

The amount of the premiums are well worth trying for, as they would knock a nice sum off the cost of one of these excellent vehicles. There are none better made. Call on these gentlemen at R. J. Neely's old stand, corner Fourth and Pleasant and they will take pleasure in showing you the finest line of fine vehicles ever seen in Paris.

Battle of Boone's Ford.

Jamestown Exposition, Va., Aug. 3.—Indian warwhoop, the gleam of tomahawks and the rattle and crack of musketry will soon bring a bit of realism to the pine forest along the shore of Hampton Roads, where nestles the log building and the stockade, of the new "Fort Boone," Kentucky's home at Jamestown Per-Centennial Exposition. Boone's fort, the one erected by the great frontiersman, Daniel Boone, stood on the South bank of the Kentucky river in Madison county, Kentucky, and many of the logs for this representation at Jamestown came from the site of the original fort. In days of Indian outbreaks the settlers flocked to the fort and many times was it attacked but always successfully defended.

On July 14th, 1775, Elizabeth and Frances, daughters of Col. Richard Callaway, and Jemima, daughter of Daniel Boone, were in a canoe on the Clark County side of the river. Lurking Indians captured and carried them away. The Indians were followed over trail leading by where the city of Winchester is now located.

The girls were rescued from the Indians at a point near Blue Licks. The pursuing party was as follows: Boone, Major Smith, Col. Floyd, Bartlett, Searcy, Catlett Jones, John Holder, Samuel Henderson and Flanders Callaway. The last three were young men and lovers of the girls; Henderson of the elder Miss Callaway; Holder of her sister Frances; Flanders Callaway, of Miss Boone. The story is one of the most thrilling in American history.

It is to commemorate this event that the citizens of that section of the Blue Grass State have arranged for a very unique celebration at the Jamestown Exposition on August 23. This date is known as "Winchester Day" and the program includes an attack on the "fort" by Indians concealed among the pines, and the capture, and subsequent rescue of certain young ladies impersonating the pioneer damsels. His story will be repeated in realistic form. Real Indians will be in the attacking party and some of Winchester's people, both male and female, will represent Indians. Others will represent the defenders of the Fort and the girls who were captured.

The committee to arrange the program consists of R. R. Perry, H. K. Taylor, B. R. Jouett and Stuart Tracy, of Winchester. Several members of the committee are descendants of Boone's rescuing party of 1775. Ex-Mayor John E. Garner will respond to the address of welcome, and in addition some of Kentucky's most talented musicians will participate in the exercises.

The Exposition managers will give all necessary aid to make the day a success. There is now no question but that Winchester Day will be one of the best during the Exposition.

The Real Reason.

It is believed by students of affairs in the Far East that the real reason for sending the American battleship fleet to the Pacific has nothing to do with Japan, but that trouble is expected when the Dowager Empress of China dies. She is now reported to be ill health.

Declines With Thanks.

William S. Taylor has declined R. B. Franklin's offer of immunity from arrest provided he comes to Kentucky to testify in the Powers trial. Taylor said his testimony would be of a negligible nature only and of no value to the defense.

The Man of the Hour.

The man of the hour is Judge K. M. Landis, of the Federal Court of the Northern District of Illinois.

He fined the greatest combination of industrial facilities the world has ever known—$29,240,000—and called their methods more inimical to society than those of violent criminals.

His decision makes law, and in 7,500 words, rapidly, forcefully read in 55 minutes, he brought the cause of honesty in commercialism from degradation into light, and gives independent operators hope of freedom of competition.

He declares that collusion existed between the Standard Oil Company and the Chicago & Alton road, and called a special grand jury to investigate.

He laid down the principle that if a corporation or railroad accepts goods for interstate shipment beyond its own lines it engages in interstate commerce, and is subject to federal regulations.

Enormous Profits.

The enormous profits of the Standard Oil Company form the basis of a long report by Herbert Knox Smith, Commissioner of Corporations, to President Roosevelt. The report gives the results of an elaborate investigation of prices and profits of the oil industry. Mr. Smith computes that in twenty-four years the Standard Oil Company has made $790,000,000 on an investment of $75,000,000. He charges that the company has resorted to unfair means of competition, and has used its powers to force prices up. He denies that the Standard has in any manner benefited the consumer, and asserts that under free competition the price would be much lower.

Thaw's New Lawyer.

Martin W. Littleton, former president of the borough of Brooklyn and a lawyer and orator of wide reputation, will be chief counsel for Harry K. Thaw when the wealthy young Pittsburger again faces a jury to answer to the charge of killing Stanford White. Thaw announced the selection of Mr. Littleton Saturday after a conference with his mother and his wife. It is said Mr. Littleton's fee will be $25,000.

As chief counsel for Thaw, Mr. Littleton will succeed Delphin M. Delmas, the San Francisco lawyer, who assumed charge of the defense soon after the opening of Thaw's first trial, which resulted in a disagreement of the jury. He is regarded as an able trial lawyer.

It was Littleton who made the speech in the last National Democratic Convention at St. Louis nominating Alton B. Parker for the Presidency.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Miles of Frankfort, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss May Keith Miles, to Mr. Alexander Massey Williamson, Professor of Electrical Engineering at State College.

The marriage will be celebrated very quietly on Saturday, August 10th, at the home of the bride-elect, and the couple will go for a trip to Canada.

Miss Miles has been making her home in Lexington for two or three years with the position of assistant to Dr. H. H. Roberts, from which she resigned about a month ago.

Prof. Wilson was graduated from Purdue University. He has been a member of the faculty of State College for several years and has won many friends in Lexington during his residence there. The bride-to-be is well known here, having frequently visited Paris friends.

THE BAY HORSE.

An Old Arab Legend That Tells of His Unmatched Speed.

The bay colored horse is said to be the swiftest of all the horses. A story to illustrate this is told of a certain Arab sheik who, having been engaged in a fight with another tribe, was taking the pines, and the capture, and subsequent rescue of certain young ladies impersonating the pioneer damsels. His story will be repeated in realistic form.

Real Indians will be in the attacking party and some of Winchester's people, both male and female, will represent Indians. Others will represent the defenders of the Fort and the girls who were captured.

They were both mounted on a magnificent white mare which belonged to the sheik and which had always been highly valued on account of the great speed at which it could go. After having ridden some little distance the sheik asked his son to look around and see if they were being followed. The boy replied that there was some one riding after them on a black horse.

The sheik seemed satisfied on hearing this report, but presently repeated his question. The boy answered that they were still being pursued, but that this time the horse was white. "Never mind," said the father; "mine is faster."

In a few minutes he asked for a further report, and the reply was the same, with the difference that the horse was a chestnut. The sheik, however, put his question a fourth time, but upon being told by his son that the pursuer was mounted on a bay he cried out, "Then we are lost, for there is no horse which it cannot overtake." His words proved to be true, for in a short time they were caught up with and captured.

First Case in Bourbon Juvenile Court.

Judge Denis Dundon held his first Juvenile Court Saturday. It was a case styled S. E. Borland vs. Scott Brandenburg. About eight months ago a Mrs. Blackburn died in this city and left a number of orphan children in extreme destitute condition. In the kindness of heart several of the neighbors of the deceased woman, living on Walker's avenue, took several of the smaller children to raise. Mrs. S. E. Borland was one of these good women who took a little girl 5-years-old. She has cared for the little thing like she would have cared for one of her own.

Scott Brandenburg, who married a half-sister of the child appeared upon the scene last week and took the child from Mrs. Borland and gave it to a family in the remote north end of the county, some distance from a school or church. A petition was then filed in the Juvenile Court by S. E. Borland to regain the possession of the child.

The Court decided in favor of Mrs. Borland and the child was returned to her.

"I dare you," said the Judge, and the boy shot the bullet with marvelous precision. Since the occurrence he is called William Tell II. The father, however, has decided to indulge in no "kidding" as to the youth's marksmanship in future, and is very well satisfied in getting off with a hole in his hat.

The boy replied, "I can shoot the hat off your head."

The father, however, has decided to indulge in no "kidding" as to the youth's marksmanship in future, and is very well satisfied in getting off with a hole in his hat.

Mrs. Sweeney Ray also has one of these children, which she is rearing. Both of these good-hearted women have become attached to their little wards and we do not believe any Court would take them away from their good homes.

Goethe's Last Moments.

The story of the deathbed of Goethe reveals a striking picture of fortitude, artistic calm and intellectual activity under the chilling dews of death. The information is gathered from a letter written on March 23, 1832, the day after Goethe's death, by Frau Louise Seidler, an art student and close friend of the poet's family. On the evening before his dissolution, with an icy coldness taking possession of him and the death rattle beginning to be audible, Goethe, with his charming daughter-in-law by his side, would talk of nothing but his pet theory of color, of the treaty of Basle, of his desire that the children should go to the theater, of his plans for the near future. As sleep did not come with the night, he called for a newly published volume of history, and covered his inability to read it with a joke. Even at 7 o'clock the next morning, just three and a half hours before he died, he sent for a portfolio to talk optics and was setting himself to classify some papers when the last agony seized him. He then lay motionless, notwithstanding its violence, till respiration ceased and the heart stood still.—London Globe.

How to Handle Your Horse.

Decision should never in handling horses be confounded with unwise determination to have things your way. In this application it means the faculty of doing the right thing at the right instant and may be cultivated by frequent practice with all sorts of horses, and of course no hands were ever developed by handling any one animal or any one kind of a horse. It is decision that gives the hand the moment the horse yields; that uses the roughest methods at a pinch, for hands are by no means always delicate or touch; that frustrates the most determined attempts of kicker, rearer or bolter; that picks the best road; that makes the animal carry himself to the best advantage for the purpose of the moment. Decision is very close to intuition in effect. Decision dominates the situation at many critical moments, and the horse is quick to discern and to presume upon its absence. There is no such thing as a safe partnership with a horse. You must be the master or he will be, to your certain future discomfiture.—F. M. Ware in Owing Magazine.

Big Benefits at London Theaters.

Betterton, in 1709, when his salary was £4 a week, had a benefit and received £76 as his share of the receipts and £450 in the shape of donations. The biggest benefit performances of modern times have taken place at Drury Lane. That for Ben Webster, held in March, 1874, realized £2,000; the profit on the Buckstone celebration, in June, 1876, was £1,200; for the Nellie Farren benefit performance, in March, 1898, there was obtained £2,260, though half of this amount was secured from private donations, which flowed in when it was known that the Messrs. Rothschild had volunteered to invest what sum was realized, give satisfaction, or money to refund. Price 25c by druggists.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribe local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a tea-spoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. A CULTURED BASS.

Higher Education Was the Ruin of This Intelligent Fish.

"Bass are intelligent little beasts. That is the reason they travel in schools," remarked Walter Dumpling, an authority on fishing and a candidate for the nature fair class.

"I have frequently observed them studying," he continued, "whether it was better taste to swallow a minnow whole or on the installment plan. I have seen them seek knowledge concerning rubber frogs and, having made up their minds that it was a false friend, go off and warn their comrades.

"I have seen them studying weather conditions, coming to the surface, gazing intently at the sky, finding the direction of the wind and satisfying themselves whether tomorrow would be clear or rainy.

"All real fishermen can vouch for the statement that bass are fond of children. I have seen them eat up the little ones.

"Bass are natural defenders of the home life, and when a carp or catfish comes browsing around to devour the eggs the female laid the male will attack the intruder by swimming under the enemy and slashing him with the sharp dorsal spine.

"I once knew a bass so intelligent that it refused to bite on the ordinary bait and was only caught after a page from an encyclopedia had been tied to the hook. Higher education was his finish."—Philadelphia North American.

IN THE SAME BOAT.

A Story of Samuel Warren and Matthew Davenport Hill.

Sam Warren, the author of "Ten Thousand a Year," has been the subject of many anecdotes, none of them better than one which I first heard related about him by his friend, Matthew Davenport Hill.

Looking in one day at Warren's chambers, Hill noticed that he seemed a little troubled. "It is," said the lawyer-novelist, "most unfortunate. I ought to have dined tonight with the lord chancellor, but Mrs. Warren is about to present me with another olive branch. How can I leave her? I hope his lordship won't be annoyed at my putting him off." "Oh," returned Hill, "don't make yourself uneasy. I am one of the guests. I know him so well I can put it all right for you." With these words the visitor prepared to leave the room.

At first profusely grateful, Warren presently seemed a little perplexed and said: "By the bye, after all, I won't trouble you to say anything about me to the chancellor. Between ourselves, I have not been invited."

"Well," rejoined Hill, "make yourself comfortable on that point. For that matter, neither have I!"—Pall Mall Gazette.

To Cure Blushing.

"A great many men blush," said a physician; "some so painfully that they come to me to be cured.

"The cure I recommend is an odd one. It is the abandonment of over-heavy clothing, especially of woolen socks. Amazing it is how many male blushers have a predilection for thick socks of wool.

"But some blushers wear light enough clothes. To them I can only recommend a nerve treatment. I advise them to make speeches at banquets, to be witnesses in murder trials, to go to teas and dances, to develop, in short, the nerve as a wrestler develops his muscle.

"Blushing is a difficult disorder to cure. As a rule it passes away of itself when the victim reaches his thirty-fifth year."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Lying.

It was said of Dr. Johnson that he always talked as though he were taking an oath. He detested the habit of lying or prevaricating in the slightest degree and would not allow his servants to say he was not at home if he was. "A servant's strict regard for the truth," said he, "must be weakened by such a practice. If I accustomed my servant to tell a lie for me, I have not reason to apprehend that he will tell it for himself." A strict adherence to truth the doctor considered as a sacred obligation, and in relating the smallest anecdote he would not allow himself the minutest addition to embellish his story.

The Transformed Pythagorean.

Some undergraduates once wished to play a practical joke upon a man who was a disciple of Pythagoras, so one day when he was a little sleepy by reason of the amount of brandy and soda that he had imbibed his friends smeared him with honey and rolled him in the inside of a feather bed. When the disciple of Pythagoras got up in the morning he looked in the looking glass at himself and said slowly, with a whistle, "Bird, by Jove!"—London Telegraph.

LAMP CLOCKS.

They Were Quite Common In the Sixteenth Century.

Of the various examples that have been given of early specimens of the clockmaker's art not the least interesting are the several types of lamp clocks. One of these was of a kind quite common in the seventeenth century and consisted of a lamp burner placed at the base of a glass oil receptacle mounted vertically on a suitable standard. The oil reservoir had attached to it a scale facing the burner and showing the hours, beginning at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time the lamp was to be lighted in winter and ending at 7 o'clock in the morning. The lamp being lighted, the gradually descending level of the oil as combustion proceeded marked the hours.

The other device, of later origin, dating back to the beginning of the last century, utilized the same principle. It consisted of two communicating oil chambers, superposed by a clock dial. In one of the chambers was placed a night lamp to illuminate this dial, and in the other was suspended a float from a cord which passed around a small pulley. The latter was mounted on a horizontal axis ending in the center of the dial. The float of course descended as the oil was consumed and carried the index hand along with it, thus marking the hours precisely as in the case already cited.—Pearson's Weekly.

PURE WATER.

The One Beverage That is the Same Yesterday, Today and Forever.

Water is the king of beverages. It is the beverage to which all turn when they would cure themselves of the injurious habit of consuming other beverages. But water that is not pure may be more harmful than the most harmful of other drinks.

Water is the basis of all other beverages. All beverages of man's manufacture are water that has been adulterated by admixtures and chemical treatment.

Pure water is the one beverage which has stood the test of science and come down to us unscathed through continuous use for countless ages. It is nature's chiefest blessing to man. Other beverages undergo many changes with time. Each age brings them forth in new styles, new methods of manufacture, new processes of chemical treatment, aging and keeping. Foods change with each successive generation. We eat different kinds of foods from time to time. Each generation prepares them differently. There are different methods of compounding them, different methods of cooking them. Pure water is the same yesterday, today and forever.—What to Eat.

Scotland.

Prior to the year 255, which witnessed its invasion by the Scotti, a tribe who inhabited the northern portions of the country now known as Ireland, Scotland bore the name of Caledonia, literally the hilly country of the Caeles, or Gaels. The word cael, or gael, is a corruption of Gadhel, signifying in the native tongue "a hidden rover," while Scot, derived from the native scuite, means practically the same thing—i. e. a wanderer. The Caledonians were the inhabitants of the highlands, the termination dun expressing the Celtic for hill, fort, stronghold. The Scots were the invaders from Scotia, who appropriated the Hebrides and western islands, whereas the lowlanders were the Picts, so called from their description by the Romans, picti, painted men.—Names and Their Meaning."

Nero and His Voice.

In an interesting paper M. Moure and M. Bouyer relate the extraordinary career which the Emperor Nero took of his voice. At night Nero lay on his back, with a thin plate of lead on his stomach. He abstained from fruits and all dishes which could hurt his voice. In order not to damage the purity of its sound he ceased harassing the soldiers and the senate. He attached to his service an officer specially deputed to take care of his voice. He talked only in the presence of this singular official, who warned him when he spoke too loudly or forced his voice, and if the emperor, carried away by some sudden fit of passion, did not listen to his remonstrances it was his duty to stop his mouth with a napkin.—Modern Medicine.

Bananas.

"Bananas," says an authority, "are by millions of people eaten green or ripe, raw or cooked, are served in all ways in which apples, grains and potatoes are used and are palatable, healthful and nutritious in every way in which they are prepared. They make excellent bread, cakes and pies, puddings, confectionery and coffee substitutes, yield brandy, beer, vinegar, sugar, oil and fibers. They are bought as a luxury by millions who may use them as a staple food. Yet they may be grown profitably in a small area only. Therefore banana culture affords a perfectly safe and gainful use of time and money."

A Cold Turndown.

"Bridget," Mrs. Housekeeper called down to her servant, "I see Mrs. Gadling coming across the street. Run out and turn that door mat upside down."

"Which one, ma'am?" asked Bridget.

"The one that has 'Welcome' on it."

—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Contradiction.

Tommy—Does it make any difference if baby takes all his medicine at once? Baby's mother (in horror)—Good heavens! Of course it does! Tommy—But it hasn't made any difference.—Punch.

No protecting deities are wanted if there is prudence.—Juvenal.

The Caserta Camellia Tree.

In the days of its glory the palace at Caserta of the king of Naples had among its features so called English garden, made in 1782 by order of Marie Caroline of Austria. It was bright with flowers and wonderful rare oriental plants and trees, so that it was renowned throughout the world, but the crown and glory of all consisted in a camellia tree, a plant then unknown in Europe. The seeds were collected as though flakes of gold, and the queen was given to them and cuttings of this camellia as presents to her friends. These cuttings were most highly prized, and thus it has become a European flower, so much so that the exportation of camellias is an extensive industry in central Italy, and in Germany there are vast fields of them. In its prime days the Caserta plant had eight branches, the largest of which was twelve inches in diameter, the whole being thirty feet high. This mother plant was in a flourishing condition up to a few years ago, but lately the gorgeous garden has been allowed to fall into decay, and with it the glorious camellia.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Rewards of Literature.

A very talented and well known writer—successful, too, in the popular estimation—tells me: "I know a man who spent fifteen years' leisure in getting the material for his best book and writing it over three times, then offered it to almost every publisher in America, meeting with refusal by all, and finally sold it to a London publisher for £50, had it republished in America some years afterward, got a few dollars before the publishers failed and as his last royalty received just 2 cents, which was exactly 10 per cent of the last sum due him. I am the man, but I don't publish the fact nor feel inclined to brag about it nor to complain for that would be useless and would only cheapen my wares in the literary market. The book paid me, by accurate calculation, 33½ cents a week for the fifteen years' work."—Papyrus.

Birds Have Favorite Plants.

Like man, birds have their favorite plants. It has been discovered that the goldfinch is passionately fond of apple blossom. This may be because its favorite building site is in the lichen covered forks of apple trees, but apart from such attachment the bright little finch frequently spends hours tearing the petals into tiny fragments. Though the nightingale never builds in the thorn boughs, it loves to sing on may linden branches, often in the very midst of the fragrant blossoms. It is somewhat peculiar that most birds avoid the cow parsnip, owing, no doubt, to the unpleasant greenish smell emitted by this umbelliferous plant. Small birds very often build in less secure places, than the parsnip, gigantic and strong as it is, is left severely alone.—London Opinion.

What Makes the Trout Shy?

The shyness of the summer trout of the still springhole is due not entirely to his keen eye trained by the quietude of transparent waters. It is to be credited more to his gregariousness. The cool places and deeper pools of the trout stream are apt to be few and have the fish in schools. If the school number, say, fifty fish it means a hundred watchful eyes and a collective shyness adjusted to that of the most timid fish of the fifty, whose sudden dash to safety gives the warning signal to all. A single nervous trout—and there are usually several—is thus enough to scatter a big school in a flash and baffle the hopes of the angler.—Clarence Deming in Outing Magazine.

Tobacco Leaves.

A scientist writes: "The essential quality for which tobacco is smoked or chewed lies not really in the leaves themselves, but is contained in thousands of hollow knobbed hairs which cover their surface. The vital nicotine is garnered in these pearl-like balls, but as it is impossible to shave off these hairs and would be a scarcely commendable achievement if it could be undertaken, it becomes necessary to preserve the whole foliage for commercial purposes."

Where the Money Came From.

Batchelor—That's a good cigar you're Popley—Yes, that's a fine ten-cent you gave me. Batchelor—I gave you? I guess not. Popley—Oh, yes, I'm sure it was your money paid for it. The only money I found in our baby's bank this morning was the dime you put in yesterday.—Catholic Standard and Times.

The One Rule.

At a club where card playing was prohibited four members smuggled in a pack and, calling the waiter aside, asked him if he had ever known the rule broken. His reply was, "All the years I have been here I have known every rule broken except one—that of giving of tips." The game proceeded.

Thoughtful.

"Are you sure the sick man wanted me?" asked the physician, reaching for his hat.

"He didn't mention your name, but he's screamin' for some one that'll put him out of his misery, and I thought of you right away."—Houston Post.

Didnt Wait.

"Were you frightened when you arose to make your first speech?" "What should frighten me?" "The audience." "The audience left as soon as my name was announced."

A Hopeless Case.

"I am in favor of spelling reform." "Glad to hear it. Come around and give my stenographer a few points, won't you?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Knabenshue Airship Will Certainly Be On Hand at the Blue-grass Fair at Lexington.

Due to the fact that the Kentucky State Fair has advertised that the only appearance of a Knabenshue passenger-carrying airship in Kentucky and Southern Indiana would be at Louisville during the week of the State Fair, some misapprehension has arisen in the minds of the general public as to whether or not a Knabenshue airship will appear at the Blue Grass Fair the week of August 12 to 17, as advertised. It should be understood that there has been no misrepresentation of any sort by the management of the Blue Grass Fair, nor has there been any misstatement by the management of the Kentucky State Fair. The fact is that the passenger-carrying airship which will appear at the State Fair is a different ship from that which will appear at the Blue Grass Fair. Both of them, however, are Knabenshue ships, possessing all the excellence which the name "Knabenshue" carries with it. The ship that will be at the Blue Grass Fair is one that has been proven by numerous flights to be entirely successful, while the one that will appear at the State Fair is a more recent production of Mr. Knabenshue that has thus far made few appearances. The Knabenshue ship will certainly be on hand the week of August 12th to 17th at Lexington and will make one or more ascents daily. The general public should not be confused by these apparently contrary but really authentic announcements by the management of both fairs.

Sometimes Does Harm.

Bishop John H. Vincent, of the Methodist church, created quite a sensation among the ministers in attendance at the Chautauqua at Coffeyville, Kansas, by attacking the evangelistic system now in vogue in most of the churches of his denomination. Bishop Vincent believes that revivals produce only temporary good, and that on account of the sensational methods used in so many of them the bad effects more than offset the good. The venerable bishop expressed himself as standing "for genuine evangelistic effort under discreet direction," but protests with emphasis against all sensationalism and spasmodic efforts to create an ill-balanced emotionalism and mere temporary devices for exciting enthusiasm."

Traction Companies Consolidate.

Nearly every small city in Central Kentucky is to be connected with Lexington by trolley, according to the plans of a new company formed at Lexington by the consolidation of the two traction companies now operating lines outside of Lexington. The Capital stock of the new company is $450,000 and the lines will reach as far south as Danville and Harrodsburg.

May Be Tried Again.

Attorneys for the prosecution have several decisions of the Kentucky Court of Appeals and the courts of other States sustaining their contention that Judge James Hargis was not necessarily in jeopardy because the jury was sworn at the Sandy Hook trial before the prosecution's officers withdrew from the case. They believe that when the case is tried before the Court of Appeals a new trial will be ordered and that the Breathitt leader will face a jury on the charge of conspiracy to murder Dr. Cox.

Whisky Barrels Advance In Price

It is stated on authority that new whisky barrels will sell higher during the coming season than at any time during recent years, the cause being due to the scarcity of white oak from which Bourbon barrels are exclusively made.

During the last distilling season the price of whisky barrels took an increase ranging from $3.25 to $3.75, but the indication is that a higher price will have to be paid this year than ever before. It is expected that by the opening of the coming season $4 will have to be paid, and that possibly the price will go as high as $4.50 before the season is over.

There is also some fear that even the cooperage may run short.

New Race Track For Louisville.

Another race track for Louisville is the latest project, which was made known by the option being taken on 250 acres of land south of Louisville by Auctioneer W. W. Daviss for $120,000. The parties interested in the project were not made known by Mr. Daviss, but it is authoritatively stated that Louisville and New York capitalists are behind the enterprise. A company has been formed with a capitalization of $500,000. Three hundred thousand dollars in addition to the purchase price of $120,000 will be spent on improvements and beautifying the grounds. He is now in New York to close the matter up.

This track is to be built because it is feared that Churchill Downs is soon to be annexed under Bingham's administration, which would stop pool selling and probably be the death of racing. Churchill Downs will probably be cut up into building lots.

Plan To Stop Feud.

Feuds in Breathitt county will soon be a thing of the past if the best class of citizens of Jackson can work out the plan they have decided on. The plan is to secure positions out of Kentucky for all of the feudists who are likely to bring up the old trouble.

Tom Cockrell, the oldest member of the Cockrell faction of the Hargis-Cockrell feud, has decided to leave Kentucky and has secured a position on the Great Northern railroad with headquarters at Grand Fork, N. D.

He left for the new country last week and will be followed this week by his wife. The Breathitt county citizens are dead in earnest to make the plan a success, and stop the feuds that have disgraced that county.

Adopting Cash System.

All over the State business men generally are forming associations to do away with the extensive credit system so long the downfall of many merchants. Business conditions of the present day do not warrant the granting of credit on six and twelve months time, and really there is no necessity for it. Expenses of conducting business have largely increased in every branch, and the close margin at which goods are now sold do not warrant the continuance of the old "pay me when you can" credit system.

High Prices Will Come.

It is becoming more and more evident that the people of this country will be facing a problem before the close of the century that they do not generally contemplate. The population of this country and of the world is increasing fast with no prospect of abatement. Should it go on at the present rate for twenty years the United States will have more than one hundred million people. Statistics show that the per centage of live stock is decreasing. Our herds are about at a standstill while the number to be fed is constantly increasing. This must mean higher priced meat products, there can be no other solution of the problem, unless the people take kindly to some substitute which can only be brought about by dire necessity, and were this to come about the food product used would increase in value the same as meat. Not only do such conditions mean higher prices eventually for meat, but cereals also must be included, as well as every other good product. There are just so many acres of land on the globe and there can never be more. True, the acres can be made to produce much more than at present, but that is the limit, and long before it is reached the demand for food will gradually force prices of everything up to a higher notch. All food must come from the soil, but with a limited area, coupled with the constant decrease in productivity occasioned by loss of fertility and ever increasing population, the demand will force prices higher, which will in a manner add to the prosperity of the farmer, especially if he is a good farmer and takes the proper care of his land.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

Having Fun.

Our neighboring city, Richmond, is just now troubled in arranging a license schedule on the business men to make good the deficit caused by the loss of the saloon license. The grand total to be raised was the sum of $5,040. To meet this $1,000 would come off the fire and life insurance companies; $2,205 is estimated to come from miscellaneous sources—various corporations and agencies not engaged in buying and selling as merchants. This leaves a balance of $1,835 to be raised from the merchants strictly. The scale was read and discussed in the presence of the assembly, and if any man had a kick coming, he had a chance to be heard. The licenses range from $10 to $35, the majority being the former figure.

Dealers To Join Pool.

A meeting of dealers in leaf tobacco was held in Cincinnati Wednesday for the purpose of considering the proposition to pool all their purchases with the Burley Association. A committee was appointed to confer with all the dealers and shippers with a view to getting them to sign a contract not to sell any tobacco on the breaks either at Cincinnati or Louisville for four months beginning August 1st, and if at the expiration of that time 75 per cent of all the tobacco is signed, that the contract be binding between the dealers and the association.

Official Count Required.

The official count will be required in Mississippi to settle the race between John Sharp Williams and Gov. James K. Vandernon for the nomination for United States Senator. Each of the candidates still claims a victory, but it looks like the chances favor Williams. The difference between them will be only a few votes when the final decision is made by the State Committee on August 8.

A Drastic Measure.

The bill making the entire State of Georgia prohibition was passed by the House Wednesday with two slight amendments, which will be concurred in by the Senate, and the Governor is certain to sign the measure when it reaches him. The new bill is drastic in its regulations and prohibits the sale of liquor in the State.

Tillman Challenges Foraker.

"I won't discuss the negro problem with Senator Foraker at long distance," said Senator Ben Tillman before the Coshocton, O., Chautauqua, Friday, "but I challenge him to meet me in Ohio before an audience of Republican voters and I'll get the best of the argument."

"On the floor of the Senate I have stuck the pitchfork into the senior Senator from Ohio and twisted it around and around but never have I been able to draw him out on this question at close range. When in his Bellefonte speech he says the South brought the fifteenth amendment to the constitution on its self by refusing to accept the fourteenth, he opens up a question that I would be delighted to discuss with him at short distance."

"He is a most adroit politician. The 40,000 negro votes in Ohio swing his State. Certain distinguished statesmen would pass out of the limelight without negro ballots hence his interest in question. In the Brownsburg affair he is right. No man should be punished for the acts of another, but his statement that the South is reaping the result of her own folly is ridiculous and is easily disproved. Let him meet me in Ohio."
